Designlife connects...

In partnership with Omarno, the English company Hutson Designs is optimising the Omarno's revolutionary new sustainable materials within Hutson's iconic furniture designs.

Hutson is one of England's leading, high-end, bespoke furniture manufacturers, combining traditional craftsmanship with modern functionalism to create flexible solutions. Hutson's product range meets the aesthetic and technical demands of architects and designers.

In close collaboration with Omarno, Amanda Hutson has now designed a new signature piece using Omarno's materials, and will be launched at TENT London as part of London Design week.

KRD

KRD, which opened in December 2003, has already seduced decoration fans thanks to Klavs Rosenfalck's unique taste and his incontestable talent as a finder of luxurious objects. His judicious choice of indispensable objects includes cashmere throws in soft or acid nuances, designer glassware and a meticulous selection of furniture and accessories that are part 20th Century classic vintage, part contemporary.

For this autumn/winter 2008/2009 collection, KRD offers a large variety of home textiles in cashmere and wool and includes bedcovers, cushions and throws from Somma. Cecchi & Cecchi and fellow Dane, designer Tom Rossau, will be displaying a selection of his novelty lighting pieces alongside Anna Torfs' striking new designs.

Worth a visit

RIBA's new website has a section dedicated to Design & Interiors. This site has been specially designed to help professionals browse through the large selection of design-related books and to highlight new, forthcoming and interesting publications. It covers a huge range of titles: from product to graphic design; photography and drawing; and also specific interior design categories such as building types, theory and practice, materials, styles and themes.
